TO THE TAX PAYERS:—

It is gratifying to the selectmen to be able to report that the finances of the town are in better condition than for many years. During the year just ended the Selectmen have bought a new steel fire proof safe, capable of meeting the requirements of the town for many years to come, for which was paid $340 00. We also sold the cottage belonging to the town, for which we received the sum of $835 00. The town still owns land enough to furnish material for many years to come. We would also report that we have during the year bought $550 00 of the town's bonded debt, reducing the bonded debt to $24,650, and have in the hands of the Town Treasurer $1512 71 in cash, an increase from last year of $932 79. During the year the Selectmen have had fitted an office for Selectmen and Town Clerk, and now have an office creditable to the town and ample for the needs of its officers. Knowing the responsibility resting upon us, we have endeavored to discharge our duty to the best of our ability, realizing that as public servants we were targets to the universal custom of condemnation or commendation. The only fruits arising from such remarks are that it has a tendency to keep the good citizens from holding office, for in case of failure the minds of the unfriendly are tickled and no one benefited thereby.

Respectfully submitted to every citizen interested in the welfare of the community.

Annual Report of Board of Education.

To the Inhabitants of the Town of New Castle:

The Board of Education would respectfully submit the following report of schools under their charge for the school year ending Feb. 15, 1895.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

The Grammar school for the entire year was under the care and instruction of Miss Ida J. Hardy of Contoocook, N. H., a graduate of the State Normal School. Miss Hardy is a bright progressive teacher, and one who is calculated to win the love and respect of her pupils, and good progress was made by the scholars in their studies.

PRIMARY DEPARTMENT.

The Primary school has been in charge of Miss Maude H. Trefethen for the past year. Miss Trefethen is a progressive teacher and good progress has been made by the school.

Record of the Public Streets, Lanes and Landings in Newcastle, N. H.

As many persons have expressed a desire to have published the record of the public streets, lanes and landings in the town, we have deemed it advisable to do so, and copy the following from the old records of the town, dated 1805 to 1834.

Whereas by an act of the legislature of this state, passed December 20th, 1803, the selectmen of any town in this state may if they think it necessary, make any of the roads or streets in their respective towns wider or straighter Wherefore, we, the selectmen of Newcastle, have widened and straightened the streets in this town as follows, namely :—

First. Beginning at the northeast corner of Thomas Bell's wood-house, from thence running north sixteen degrees; west eighteen and one-half rods to a station forty feet from the front door of Isaac Pridham's and Martha Bell's house; thence north forty-three and one-half degrees; west, eight rods and 20 links to the corner of Thomas Sheafe's lot, at a station bearing north 65 degrees; west twenty-nine and one-half feet from the southwesterly corner of Wilson's house, now belonging to Henry Prescott. The above described lines are the southwardly side of the street, which shall be twenty-four feet wide, excepting those places which are now more than that width.

Secondly. From a station bearing south six degrees; west twenty-four feet from the southeasterly corner of a house belonging to the heirs of Capt. Meshach Bell, deceased, we run north eighty-four degrees; west six rods and fifteen links to the northeasterly corner of the widow Peggy Tredick's house. The above lines we determine for the southerly side of the street, which is to be twenty-four feet wide, excepting where it is more by the original fence now standing on the northerly side of the street.

Thirdly. From the northwesterly corner of John Kennier's house, south 79 degrees; west seventeen rods four links to the northeasterly corner of Christopher Amazeen's house, thence by the front of said house to the northwesterly corner of it; thence north eighty-three degrees; west five rods fourteen links to the northeasterly corner of the widow Elizabeth Yeaton's house; thence following the northerly side of said house to the northwesterly corner of the same; thence north sixty-two degrees; west nine rods, passing by the store of John Amazeen, Jr., at a distance of twenty-four feet therefrom. The above lines are considered as the southerly side of the street, which is determined by us to be twenty-four feet wide. From thence south sixty-five degrees; west four rods to another street near the corner of land in possession of the heirs of Mary Jones, deceased, the width of the street to be as before.

Fourthly. We determine that the street shall be twenty-four feet wide, from the front of Joseph Amazeen's house to the front of Foxwell Curtis' house.

Fifthly. From the easterly corner of the widow Jane Jones' house we run north to the river, and determine the street or passage-way shall be twenty-four feet wide on the east side of the above line.

Sixthly. From a station bearing east twenty-four feet from the south-easterly corner of a house belonging to the heirs of Capt. Meshach Bell, before mentioned, we run north one and one-half degrees; west ten rods, thence north one degree; west to the river, and we determine the above line shall be the easterly side of said street which is to be twenty-four feet wide.

Seventhly. Then we begun at a station four feet northwest of the south westerly corner of the aforesaid Wilson house, (now Henry Prescott's) and run north forty-nine and one-half degrees; east ten rods to the river, at the northwesterly corner of Elias Tarlton's house, and we determine the above line shall be the easterly side of the street, which shall be twenty-four feet wide.

Eighthly. Then we begun at the southwesterly corner of William Tarlton's field and northwesterly corner of John Tarlton's field, and run north forty degrees; east eight rods five links to the southwesterly corner of said Wm. Tarlton's house. Then north forty-four degrees; east to the river, being about four rods. The above lines we consider as the easterly side of the street, which we determine shall be twenty-four feet wide, excepting those places that are now more than that width.

Ninthly. We run from Capt. Joseph Bell's corner, so called, north forty-four degrees; west thirteen and one-half rods, which line passes by the northwesterly corner of said Bell's house, at the distance of four feet therefrom, and ends at a post in Henry S. Branscomb's garden fence ten feet from the northeast corner of his house, measuring at right angles with said line; thence north forty-six and one-half degrees; west five rods fourteen links to within three feet of the northeast corner of John Tarlton's house; thence north sixty-five and one-half degrees; west six rods twenty-one links to the centre of said Tarlton's well; thence north seventy-one degrees; west five rods five links to a station twenty-four feet from the southwest corner of William White's house, measuring at right angles; thence north seventy-eight degrees; west three rods to within twenty- four feet of the southwest corner of Richard Neal's house; thence north eighty-seven degrees; west five rods seventeen links, passing by the front of a house belonging to John White and the heirs of Edward White, at the perpendicular distance of twenty-four feet therefrom, to a station in Henry Prescott's field; thence north sixty-one degrees; west twelve rods fifteen links to the northeast corner of said Prescott's store; thence north fifty-nine degrees; west sixteen rods; thence south fifty-six degrees; west four rods nine links to within two feet of the northwesterly corner of James Neal's house; thence south forty-five degrees; west seven rods eight links to the west side of a ledge of rocks in Hall J. Locke's land; thence south twenty-seven and one-half degrees; west five rods to the west side of a very large rock; south seventeen degrees; west nineteen rods to the road leading by the meeting-house to Walton's farm, passing by the southeasterly corner of Nathaniel Amazeen's house at the perpendicular distance of twenty-six feet, which lines we consider as the southerly and easterly of the street which we determine to be twenty-four feet wide. We also determine that the street leading from the lower town landing by the house belonging to the heirs of Capt. William Tredick, Jr, deceased, to the town landing, by the house of Elias Tarlton, shall be open the width of twenty-four feet, agreeable to the above survey of the other streets in town.

A return of a road laid out by the subscribers, selectmen of Newcastle, for the year A. D. 1814, from Mr. William Amazeen's barn to the Cape or Clark's neck in said town, said road, highway or street, to be two rods wide. Beginning twenty-one feet from the south end of Wm. Amazeen's barn and running to the corner of the well in said Amazeen's field as it now stands; thence sixteen and one-half feet from the corner of the wall at the upper end of said Amazeen's field, where it meets the sea wall; thence on a straight line so as to leave Mr. Joseph Amazeen's house two rods south of it, this line from the beginning is the north side of said highway; thence from the northwest corner of said Joseph Amazeen's house to the house occupied by Benj. Yeaton, so as to leave the last mentioned house twenty-eight feet to the south of said line; thence to the house belonging to John Yeaton and heirs of John Batson to the corner of the shed so as to leave the said house twenty-eight feet to the south of it; thence to the northeast end of Capt. Benjamin Jenkins' house; thence by said house to the northwest corner; thence from said corner on a line until it comes opposite to Nathaniel Lear's store, so as to leave said store southeast corner of it twenty-four feet to the north of it; thence from a point twenty-four feet from the southeast corner of said Lear's store to the northeast end of Nathaniel Lear's house; thence by the north side of said house and by the north side of Benj, Meloon's house and the house belonging to the heirs of Joseph Rand; thence to the land owned by Dr. Joseph Goodhue, so as to leave the highest part of the bank of the river two rods to the north of said line. The line here described from the northwest corner of Jos. Amazeen's house is to be the south line of said highway.

At a legal town meeting, held at Newcastle, March 4, 1834, it was voted that Thomas F. Foye have a private pass-way of two rods and a half wide across the Parsonage land to his land in said town of Newcastle, he, the said Foye, pledging himself that said town of Newcastle shall be at no expense for fencing or making said road, and that the selectmen are hereby authorized to locate the same, and the said Foye further agrees that the town shall sustain no damage on account of said road or pass-way.

Agreeable to a vote of the town, the selectmen do lay out a road for Thos. F. Foye, from the main road leading to Newcastle Bridge, beginning 75 feet from the corner of Thos. B. Frost's land, running south, south-east, to the northwest corner of his barn, and do set off two rods and a half on a parallel line for the breadth of said road.

December 11, 1834.
